The Supplier Code of Business Conduct is applicable to all suppliers providing products or services to Euroclear.

We require our suppliers, their subsidiaries and affiliates to share and apply the standards which are expressed in this Supplier Code of Business Conduct and to replicate these standards further down their supply chain, including but not limited to their subcontractors involved directly or indirectly in the delivery of products or services to Euroclear.

Our Supplier Code of Business Conduct at a glance

This Supplier Code of Business Conduct directly aligns with the principles of our own Code of Ethics and Business Conduct as well as with our ESG Policy, which is considered to be an integral part of business and contractual relations in place with Euroclear. We expect our suppliers to conduct their business in alignment with the following pillars:

1 Environment

Our suppliers are expected to collaborate with us in the achievement of our environmental goals, to comply with all applicable laws and to strive for best practices.

2 Social

Our suppliers must comply with applicable human rights and employment laws and are expected to support the protection of fundamental human rights wherever they operate in the world.

3 Business integrity

Our suppliers must comply with all applicable laws and regulations and conduct their business in an ethical manner.

Environment

Euroclear is committed to ensuring sustainable business practices by continuously minimising and being accountable for the impact of its activities on the environment, using resources responsibly as well as aiming for standards that match or exceed environmental best practices.

In addition to complying with applicable laws, including environmental laws of the countries in which suppliers operate, we expect our suppliers to acknowledge their environmental impacts, implement appropriate systems to assess and measure the impacts of their operations, products and services and take appropriate steps to continuously reduce negative impacts on the global environment across the lifecycle of their products and services.

Social

Euroclear supports the protection of human rights and is guided by fundamental principles such as those in the United Nations (UN) Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the International Labour Organisation (ILO) Core Conventions.

We expect our suppliers to support the following principles in their own organisations and supply chains.

Corporate commitment

Our suppliers must comply with all applicable labour, human and social rights laws, regulations and standards including the publication of a statement on modern slavery and human trafficking if required.

Healthy, safe and secure work environment

Our suppliers must comply with all relevant health and safety laws and provide a working environment that minimises health and safety risks. The supplier shall allow workers to express their concerns about working conditions without threats of reprisal or harassment.

Refusal of forced labour

We must under no circumstances use, or in any way benefit from, forced, bonded or compulsory labour in our supply chain. We therefore expect our suppliers to take sufficient and reasonable steps to ensure Euroclear is not indirectly benefiting from, or contributing to, modern slavery or human trafficking in its supply chain.

Refusal of child labour

Our suppliers should not use child labour.¹ Their employees shall not be younger than the compulsory school age in accordance with laws and regulations and in any event not younger than 15 years of age.

Freedom of association

As far as the applicable laws allow, our suppliers shall recognise and respect the right of employees to freedom of association and collective bargaining.

Privacy and protection of personal information

Our suppliers must comply with applicable privacy laws and are expected to secure Euroclear data against unauthorised access or use.

Non-discrimination and harassment

Euroclear does not tolerate discrimination², intimidation or harassment. Our suppliers are expected to share our commitment to diversity and inclusion.

1 ILO conventions (Minimum Age Conventions N° 138 and the Worst Forms of Child Labour Convention N° 182) provide the framework for national law to prescribe a minimum age for admission to employment or work that must not be less than the age for completing compulsory schooling, and in any case not less than 15 years.

2 As per the Principle 6 of the UN Global Compact, discrimination in employment and occupation means treating people differently or less favourably because of characteristics that are not related to their merit or the inherent requirements of the job. These characteristics commonly include: race, colour, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity, age, national extraction, social or ethnic origin, disability, HIV/AIDS status, political opinion, trade union membership.

Ethical business practices

Euroclear promotes individual and business integrity by doing business in an ethical and lawful manner and by maintaining the highest standards of integrity when dealing with internal stakeholders, market participants, clients, suppliers and any other stakeholders.

We expect our suppliers to apply the same level of business integrity in their relationship with Euroclear, in their own organisation and in their supply chain.

Compliance with laws and regulations

Euroclear is committed to full adherence to all applicable laws and regulations as they affect business transactions with all suppliers. We expect the same from our suppliers in their business dealings with Euroclear and with their respective supply chains.

Bribery and corruption

Suppliers are expected to fully comply with the requirements of the US Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, the UK Bribery Act, and other applicable anti-corruption laws. Suppliers shall not take any actions that could be perceived as an attempt to bribe, accept a bribe or engage in any corruption activities.

Gifts and hospitality

The offering of gifts and hospitality can be misinterpreted, possibly giving the appearance of improper behaviour, or creating the expectation of something in return. The basic principle is that we cannot give or accept any form of gift/hospitality when this may appear to improperly influence the recipient in any way. We do this by setting and respecting specific thresholds and conditions. Additionally, we must never offer/accept cash or cash equivalent gifts (e.g. voucher). We ask our suppliers for their full support in this matter and the assurance that this is communicated to the appropriate officers and employees within their organisation.

Conflicts of interest

Our suppliers are expected to avoid any conflict of interest or situation which could be perceived as a potential conflict of interest. Suppliers are also expected to immediately report any situation/event that may appear to be an actual or potential conflict of interest.

Confidentiality / Intellectual property

Our suppliers are expected to take necessary measures to prevent any accidental or malicious leakage of any sensitive or critical Euroclear information. They are also expected to respect the intellectual property rights of Euroclear and conduct transfer of technology and know-how in a manner that protects intellectual property rights. No Euroclear confidential information shall be communicated to any third parties without Euroclear's prior written consent.

Speak-up (whistleblowing)

Euroclear has established several reporting channels for staff and relevant stakeholders such as suppliers, to report violations of the Code of Ethics and Business Conduct, laws, regulations or company policies. We expect our suppliers to report suspicions of any violations to their usual Euroclear point of contact, to Euroclear's external hotline (Safecall) or by email to Euroclear@safecall.co.uk. We also expect our suppliers to comply with applicable whistleblowing laws and regulations.

- not to provide us directly or indirectly with any product or service from a country, entity or person that is subject to sanctions or embargoes
- not to use any funds received from us for the benefit of a sanctioned person /entity
- to implement adequate sanctions compliance program/procedures, including appropriate due diligence and screening, in order to ensure compliance with the above obligations

Personal data protection

Our suppliers must comply with applicable data protection laws and regulations. Any Euroclear Personal Data processed by our suppliers as data processor, within the meaning of the EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), shall solely be processed in accordance with Euroclear’s instructions.

Market abuse

Market abuse rules aim to ensure integrity of financial markets and to enhance investor protection and market confidence. Our suppliers shall not engage in unlawful disclosure of inside information, insider dealing or market manipulation.

Fair competition

Our suppliers must conduct business in full compliance with all applicable competition laws and must not engage in any anti-competitive behaviour whether on Euroclear’s behalf or otherwise.

Suppliers shall not use Euroclear’s name or logo in any advertising, promotional material, press releases, client list or similar materials, or in any form of digital or social networking channel without first obtaining Euroclear’s written consent.

Violation of our Supplier Code of Business Conduct

Our suppliers shall:

- upon request, provide Euroclear with the information needed to check compliance with this Code
- inform Euroclear of any obstacles in the application of this Code

Conclusion

We value our suppliers as our partners and we expect them to share our vision and commitment to sustainability and responsible business conduct. By complying with this Supplier Code of Business Conduct, our suppliers demonstrate their alignment with the three pillars and their contribution to our long-term success and reputation.

We appreciate our suppliers’ cooperation and collaboration in this regard and we look forward to strengthening our relationship and creating value for all our stakeholders.

1. Introduction

The Market Abuse Prevention Implementing Procedure (the IP) is defined based on the Market Abuse Prevention Policy (the MAP Policy) endorsed by the Board of Directors (the Board). The IP follows the same regulatory landscape and group minimum requirements. The definitions used in the IP are equal to those used in the MAP Policy and can be found in the Definitions section. In case of doubt the definitions in the MAP Policy prevail.

2. Scope

The scope of the IP is to define the actions to be taken to ensure effective and adequate market abuse prevention based on the minimum requirements set by the Board and delegations in the MAP Policy.

There are three main measures to be taken in order to prevent market abuse in the company:

Entity Risk assessment	Operational controls and measures	Governance controls and measures
• Should be: • Proportionate • Risk based	• Such as: • Restricted lists (banned and insider lists) • Personal transactions rules • Information barriers • Procedures on adequately managing inside information	• At least: • Annual self-declaration • Reporting of breaches • Handling record keeping and data protection • Performing training and awareness

3. Market Abuse Risk Assessment

The CEO should ensure that market abuse risk assessment is performed regularly as defined by the Board in section 3.1. in the MAP Policy.

The first line (where relevant) should perform a market abuse risk assessment to identify the risks of the exposure to non-public information within the organisation, that could be used for the personal gain of the individual or a closely related person¹.

The market abuse domain should be included in the regular risk assessment performed by Compliance & Ethics (C&E) and compliance with the regulatory and internal policy requirements should be reported to the CEO and Board.

As defined in the MAP Policy, the risk assessment should:

- be proportionate to the nature and activities of ES,
- include an evaluation of market abuse inherent and residual risks, considering:
 - local legal and regulatory requirements,
 - the exposure to and adequate management of Euroclear-own inside information², and/or to third party inside information and subsequent risks of insider dealing and

¹ See definition in Section 8 Definitions

² Euroclear-own inside information means an inside information related to Euroclear Group or its own securities, when acting as issuer.

unlawful disclosure of inside information,

- risks of misbehaviours amounting to market manipulation
- include the identification of Board members and Staff, as well as business lines and teams with activities presenting a High, Medium or Low risk of the Market risks components as referenced in the point above.
- be based on Euroclear Group Risk Assessment and Rating Methodology (ARM) or with a similar methodology approved by the Board.

In addition to the regular market abuse risk assessment, whenever relevant, ad-hoc risk assessments should be done in case of changes in the business, organisation or governance of ES as the risk landscape might change as well.

Based on the outcome of the risk assessment ES management should ensure that appropriate controls to manage the risks identified are defined and implemented. The adequacy and effectiveness of these controls should be assessed both by the first and second line in their regular market abuse risk assessment exercises.

Results of the risk assessment should be reported to the CEO (via ExCom).

4. Operational controls and measures

The Board has defined measures to prevent the abuse of ES business and information for personal gain or market manipulation (section 3.2. in MAP Policy).

The following measures should be implemented in the organisation:

- Restricted lists
- Information barriers
- Personal transaction rules
- Procedures on adequately managing inside information

Any additional measures can be added if risk areas identified in the risk assessment require it. The decision should be made by the CEO.

4.1. Restricted Lists

Restricted lists include financial instruments which the Board, Staff and their closely related persons should not trade in or in any other way engage in without the risk of being involved in or being perceived to be involved in insider dealings.

❖ Banned list

The Banned list includes listed companies belonging to the Euroclear Group, companies with which Euroclear has a permanent relationship³ or is in direct competition with, that may lead Board members or Staff to receive Inside Information relating to their Financial Instruments or confidential information.

The list is updated by ESA C&E which informs ES C&E of changes to the list. ESA C&E updates the list on the official intranet site (SharePoint) for easy access by all staff within the Euroclear Group.

ES C&E is responsible to distribute the information of changes to the Banned list internally within ES and to collect and assesses any risk with ownership of the instruments by Staff.

³ Companies with which Euroclear has a “permanent relationship” mean companies closely and perennially associated to Euroclear, for example via means of shareholding.

ES C&E is the single point of contact in regards to the Banned List, both receiving information of changes from ESA C&E and informing them if ES develops a permanent relationship with a company that should be on the Banned List (in accordance to the criteria defined in the MAP Policy). ES department heads are responsible to inform ES C&E of such circumstances.

ES Corporate Secretariat (CoSec) is responsible to ensure that the Board is informed of the changes and to collect information from Board members of ownership or trading in the instruments. Board members should seek advice from CoSec regarding specific situations in relation to the financial instruments on the Banned list. CoSec assesses any risk with ownership of the financial instruments by Board members with support from ES C&E.

As defined in the MAP Policy, non-executive Board members are not prohibited to trade in the financial instruments on the Banned list if the instruments are issued by their employer, the transaction is done in accordance with the market abuse prevention rules of those companies and such transactions are not done while in possession of Inside Information exposed to during their mandate at ES.

Any Board member or member of Staff should report to C&E or CoSec their holdings in the financial instruments upon onboarding or start of their mandate/engagement and when changes are made to the Banned list affecting their ownership status. C&E and/or CoSec is responsible to assess the adequate measures to be taken in proportion to the potential risk arising from the ownership.

❖ Insider lists

Insider Lists are lists of companies and Inside Information disclosed to Staff in their daily business activities within ES (e.g. in services such as affiliation, issuing of new shares, corporate actions or other business queries etc.). The disclosure can be done by the issuer or someone acting on their behalf⁴.

The Staff member that receives the Inside Information (i.e. non-public information) is the first point of contact and has the responsibility to start an Insider List for the issuer and to keep it up to date with every other person that is exposed to the Inside Information of the issuer and becomes an Insider. Separate Insider Lists should be kept for each specific Inside Information even if it is for the same issuer. Any person exposed to the Insider Information should be informed of the Insider status and added to the Insider List (Board members, Staff or external parties). ES is not required to report the Insiders to a competent authority unless requested by the competent authority or issuer (as the reporting party).

The content and format of the insider list should comply with the requirements in MAR⁵ and the adjacent implementing technical standards⁶.

Each person exposed to inside information should confirm in writing that he/she understands and undertakes to follow the legal and regulatory duties resulting from the exposure to Inside Information in an insider logbook. The logbook should contain information on what the legal implications of the exposure is and the potential sanctions that are applicable if the person engages in Insider Dealing or Unlawful Disclosure based on the information. The Insider should confirm the acknowledgement by signing of the information in the logbook.

Insiders should be duly informed when the Inside Information has been publicly available, and the person is not to be considered an insider anymore.

The first line, with the advice of C&E, is responsible to ensure that there are procedures in place to handle Inside Information and that there are adequate forms in place for the Insider log, Insider List and termination notes.

⁴ Issuer and person acting on their behalf will jointly be referred to as "issuer".

⁵ Article 18 of Regulation (EU) No 596/2014 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 16 April 2014 on market abuse (Market Abuse Regulation)

⁶ Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) 2022/1210 of 13 July 2022 laying down implementing technical standards for the application of Regulation (EU) No 596/2014 of the European Parliament and of the Council with regard to the format of insider lists and their updates

4.2. Personal transactions rules

The monitoring of personal transactions is important to ensure that personal transaction rules are effective in preventing Staff from committing Market Abuse offences⁷ by misusing non-public or confidential information they may receive in their daily business activities. As ES is not operating trading platforms, the Staff use external platforms with other participants on the financial market to perform potential profitable trades. C&E is therefore dependent of that the Staff are reporting their trades regularly in order for C&E to detect breaches in time. The transactions should be reported to C&E as soon as possible, but no later than three days after the settlement date of the transaction. If no trades are performed or there are other reasons for the employee or contractor not to report transactions, he/she should confirm in writing to C&E the reason for not reporting trades to the best of their knowledge (see Attestation/Undertaking and information of holdings form - separate appendix 3).

For the purpose of personal transaction rules, the term 'Reporting Party' is used which includes Board members and Staff (employees and contractors) potentially having access to non-public information which could be used for trading in such a way that breach of Market Abuse Regulation is at risk.

Reporting Parties, such as Board members and Contractors, could be excluded from the reporting obligation if they, in their mission, are considered not having access to non-public information. Board members are generally excluded from reporting obligation given that they are not part of the daily business of ES, unless otherwise decided by the Board. However, C&E should be consulted regarding the exclusion of Contractors.

4.2.1. Trading prohibitions

❖ General prohibition rules

The prohibition rules in this section are applicable to all trades (including purchase/sale, cancellation/amendment of trades), unless otherwise stated. There is no difference whether the trade is performed for own account, the account of a Closely Related Person, for ES account or for the account of another person in relation to or outside the employment. No member of Staff may:

- use their position or act in a way that give signals that they have advantage in trading for themselves or Closely Related Persons,
- use or disclose Inside Information or confidential information for own or other persons trading or to manipulate the price of Financial Instruments,
- trade in Financial Instruments in such way that their personal economy might be jeopardised,
- trade through another party - a so called front man (Sw. Bulvan), or
- circumvent these rules by e.g. trading in derivatives or other combination of financial instruments.

The Reporting Party should be informed of the trading prohibitions and their obligations upon entering into engagement or employment with ES or when engagement/employment circumstances change (e.g. change of positions). The persons shall confirm acknowledgement and acceptance of the rules in writing. C&E shall ensure that an attestation form is defined and that it is made available to the Reporting Parties.

❖ Trading prohibitions for staff handling corporate actions

The activities in ES include administration of corporate action events, such as market introductions, takeover bids, issuing etc.

Reporting Party handling corporate finance events at ES need to request a pre-approval of the trade by C&E prior to entering into any transaction in Financial Instruments. Further, senior managers (CEO and members of ExCom) are considered being employees with regular knowledge of corporate finance events and should also request pre-approval for their trades from C&E. C&E should ensure that there is a defined pre-approval procedure in place and instruct Reporting Parties of how the pre-approval should be requested.

The pre-approval should be valid for three business days.

Reporting Parties involved in a market introduction processes (e.g. Initial Public Offerings - IPO's) are prohibited to obtain allocation in the introduction. The same rule applies to a Closely Related Person to Reporting Parties. The prohibition also includes trades in Financial Instruments whose value is highly dependent of the issuing stock or the issuer's financial position until the day after the issuer publishes their first bi-annual report after the market introduction.

The same rules apply to all corporate actions similar to market introductions. A Reporting Party that has been involved in the market introduction by giving advice in the introduction process is also covered by the mentioned rules.

❖ One-month-rule

The trading prohibition includes the restriction of realising, or in any other way securing a profit through transactions in Financial Instruments within a retention period of less than one month (the "One-Month-Rule" (Sw. Enmånadsregeln)). Some exemptions to the One-month-rule are defined in section 4.2.4. The One-Month-rule is described further in section 4.2.6.

❖ Publicly organised competitions

No Reporting Party may, at any time during his/her term of employment or engagement, participate in a publicly organised competition concerning the outcome of fictitious or real investments (e.g. share trading competitions and similar).

4.2.2. Reporting Obligation

As soon as the Reporting Party has received knowledge about his/her Reporting Obligation he/she needs to:

- report personal and Closely Related Persons holdings at the time of the notification on his/her reporting obligation,
- immediately report any changes in the holdings of personal or Closely Related Persons Financial Instruments, and
- upon request by C&E, report any other information regarding personal or Closely Related Persons ownership in Financial Instruments to the extent and at the time requested by C&E.

The Reporting Obligation also includes ownership of Financial Instruments through pension or other insurance products where the Reporting Party or the Closely Related Person can influence the placement of the investments.

Reporting Party should, in respect of external engagements which includes trading in Financial Instruments for a third party⁸, report to C&E the client's ownership of the Financial Instruments or changes in the ownership. Reporting Party has to receive consent from C&E for such external engagements.

The Reporting Obligation does not exist if the Reporting Party has no holdings. The Reporting Party has to inform C&E of this circumstance and if it changes, i.e. as soon as the Reporting Party starts trading or receives Financial Instruments in his/her holdings.

⁸ Example of such engagements are board member, treasury responsible person in a legal entity (such as residential association, smaller company or other) or external engagement with responsibilities of investment management for clients etc.

The Reporting Obligation requires the Reporting Party to report all personal transactions carried out in Financial Instruments for review to C&E as soon as possible and in accordance with the rules in this IP.

This includes reporting of any changes in holdings, such as due to mandatory corporate actions (split, spin-off etc) or participation in a call/put option.

C&E should ensure that there is a defined reporting procedure in place and that instructions on how to submit reports to C&E are made public.

4.2.3. Reporting obligation

As soon as the Reporting Party receives information about his/her Reporting Obligation, the Reporting Party must inform C&E about any Closely Related Persons and whether any of them are subject to a Reporting Obligation. The Reporting Party must also inform C&E of:

- i) entry into and retirement from an investment club which trades in and/or manages Financial Instruments,
- ii) any ownership interest in a company that is not a public company which trades in or manages Financial Instruments,
- iii) any engagement concerning the discretionary management of his own holdings or the holdings of a Closely Related Person,
- iv) the acquisition of shares in a securities institution which are not traded on the stock market prior to the acquisition, and
- v) any engagement outside of work in respect of Financial Instruments for another party.

A Reporting Person being member in an investment club according to (i) or a person with ownership interests in a company according to (ii) have to present an annual report on the club/company business.

The Reporting Party must inform Closely Related Persons of the rules concerning the Reporting Obligation applicable to them and the manner in which transactions in Financial Instruments could be carried out.

4.2.4. Exemptions from reporting or other obligations

If an exemption according to this section applies, the One Month-rule is no longer applicable unless otherwise stated.

❖ Discretionary Portfolio Management

Trades in Financial Instruments performed within discretionary portfolio management are exempted from Reporting Obligation. The exemption is applicable under the circumstance that:

- i) the Reporting Party has commissioned another party to manage his/her holdings in Financial Instruments,
- ii) there is no exchange of information between the manager and the Reporting Party (or anyone representing the Reporting Party) regarding execution of the trade, and
- iii) the Reporting Party in no way, directly or indirectly, contributes or effects the execution of the trading decision.

Robot management or other similar management is considered as discretionary management, as long as the circumstances under (ii) and (iii) are fulfilled.

The first paragraph is applicable to discretionary portfolio management of Reporting Party's indirect ownership in pension and insurance products.

❖ Closely Related Persons

Exemption applies provided that the Closely Related Person has a reporting obligation, similar to the obligations stated in the IP, in another financial institution. The exemption has to be documented by C&E and the Reporting Party has to inform C&E if the circumstances change.

C&E may exempt a Closely Related Person's transactions in Financial Instruments from the Reporting Obligation provided the Reporting Party does not participate in the decisions relating to the transactions by way of consultation or otherwise.

Examples of when an exemption may be granted are when the transaction is executed:

1. by the Closely Related Person him-/herself,
2. by a guardian appointed pursuant to the Children and Parents Code (Sw. Föräldrabalken),
3. within the scope of discretionary management, both in regards of the Closely Related Person's direct holdings, as well as indirect holdings via pension or other insurance products,
4. by an investment club of which the Reporting Party is a passive member, or
5. by a company, that is not a public company, which trades in and manages Financial Instruments of which the Reporting Party is a passive owner or partner.

❖ Fund Units

Fund units exempted from the Reporting Obligation are:

- i) units in securities funds and other equivalent funds within the EEA,
- ii) units in Swedish special funds⁹,
- iii) units in funds other than those referred to in sub-sections i) and ii), and holdings in collective investment undertakings if they are subject to statutory supervision in a country within the EEA and have a sufficiently broad diversification of risk.

Sufficiently broad diversification of risk means, for the purposes of sub-section iii), that the fund's holdings consist of at least ten different Financial Instruments, and not more than two of the holdings each amount to not more than 30 percent of the fund's assets from a single issuer, and other holdings each amount to not more than five percent of the fund's assets from a single issuer.

An exemption under this section also includes the holdings of a Reporting Party or a Closely Related Person in units as referred to in sub-sections i) to iii) through indirect holdings via pension or other insurance products.

The provisions of this section are not applicable to units in funds and collective investment undertakings which are traded on a stock exchange or other marketplace, such as ETFs.

❖ Financial instruments based on stock market indexes

Transactions in Financial Instruments whose value movement depends entirely on widely used and composed stock market indexes, such as S&P 500¹⁰ or MSCI EAFE,¹¹ are exempted from the Reporting Obligation.

¹⁰ S&P 500 index tracks the performance of stocks of 500 largest companies in the United States.

¹¹ The MSCI EAFE (EAFE stands for Europe, Asia, and Far East) measures the performance of stocks in developed countries outside of the United States.

❖ Engagements outside the employment

C&E may grant exemption from the Reporting Obligation regarding external engagements if there are special reasons for such exemption. The Reporting Party should request a pre-approval from C&E regarding the exemption before starting the engagement.

❖ One-month-rule

C&E may grant an exemption from the One-month-rule if there are special reasons for such exemption. Examples when exemption may be granted are circumstances relating to family or housing conditions that require quick liquidation of assets that cannot wait for the Month to pass. The consent has to be given before the trade is executed (pre-approval). The Reporting Obligation and One-month-rule continues after the specific exemption event has passed.

4.2.5. ES undertaking

As an employer ES takes on the responsibility to:

1. inform the Reporting Party of the content of the reporting rules and the format in which reports should be presented to C&E, as well as appropriately making sure that the Reporting Party has read and understood the reporting rules,
2. decide upon, and inform the Reporting Party of, any exemptions which are to apply pursuant to section 4.2.4,
3. notify relevant Reporting Parties of decisions according to point 5 and 6 below and the trading prohibitions for persons involved in corporate finance activities (see section 4.2.1),
4. accept memberships in investment clubs and partial-ownership in companies as referred to in points i) and ii) of section 4.2.3, provided that the Reporting Party, by controlling the statutes, investment regulations or equivalent, has assured him-/herself that the club or company will comply with the rules set forth under the One-month-rule,
5. may consent to acquisitions of shares as referred to in point iv) of the first paragraph of section 4.2.3 and the acquisition cannot be perceived as circumvention of the One-month-rule,
6. may allow ownership extensions or engagements as referred to in points iii) and v) of the first paragraph of section 4.2.3 unless it constitutes a violation to the One-month-rule.

4.2.6. One-month-rule - General provisions

The provisions in this section relating to a Reporting Party shall also apply to:

1. Transactions carried out by a Closely Related Person provided that the Reporting Party has been consulted with or in any other way participated to the business decisions,
2. Transactions carried out by a service provider to third parties in external engagements (see section 4.2.2) unless the C&E has granted an exemption in accordance with section 4.2.4.

A Reporting Party may not redeem or in any other way secure a profit (such as by hedging or using derivative instruments) within a retention period of less than one Month. This means that acquisitions of Financial Instruments (long positions) and negative positions (short positions by e.g. short sales) with a retention period of less than one Month are not permitted.

Financial Instruments already held by a Reporting Party (i) at the commencement of the employment or contractual engagement, or (ii) which the Reporting Party subsequently receives by inheritance, property division or through Testament, or (iii) as a gift from someone other than a Closely Related Person, or (iv) by someone else obligated under the personal transaction rules, shall be considered being in a retention period of over a Month.

The Reporting Party has to leave a statement of holdings at the commencement of the engagement with ES in order to document the ownership and holdings.

❖ Month - definition

A Month is defined as a period of time from and including a particular date in a calendar month until the same date in the following calendar month (e.g. if someone acquires a Financial Instrument on March 10, the instrument may not be sold with a profit until April 10 at the earliest). If the date is missing in the following month, such date shall be considered to fall on the first day thereafter of the month (e.g. if someone acquires a Financial Instrument on January 31, the same may not be sold with profit until March 1 at the earliest).

❖ Special provisions

When applying the One-month-rule the following should be considered:

1. A position in Financial Instruments that could gain profit has to be retained for at least a Month,
2. If a redemption of a Financial Instrument is made through as a short sale, the negative (short) position may not be paired by making a corresponding purchase in the Financial Instrument, if this results in a profit, within a Month after the transaction date of the sale,
3. An exchange of Financial Instruments is considered as a purchase and a redemption,
4. Shares subscribed in an issuing with privileged rights (e.g. issuing of new shares) has to be retained for a Month relating to the date of the purchase of the underlying share.

❖ Permitted trades in relation to the One-month-rule

The One-month-rule is not applicable to:

- Redemption that does not constitute a profit (sale with loss),
- Purchase made to cover a short sale if there is no profit in the transaction,
- Redemption of issuing-, purchase- or other rights,
- Use of options such as buy option, subscription option or convertibles with payment or conversion in undelaying Financial Instruments. The use of the option may be done even if the instrument has not been held for a Month. The retention period of the underlying instruments acquired in this way may be calculated from the options instrument,
- Accepted public tender offers,
- Redemption of Financial Instruments that have been acquired through a purchase offer (spin off; Sw. Avknoppning), or as a dividend in kind (Sw. Sakutdelning), e.g. in shares or as a fund issuing, under the circumstance that the underlying instrument has been owned for more than a Month.

❖ Profit

Profit on an acquired Financial Instrument is the net payment upon redemption (i.e. less expenses), less the net payment at acquisition (i.e. including expenses). When calculating the profit, the premiums received, e.g. for derivative instruments issued and profits from exchange rate on foreign Financial Instruments, shall be included. The principle is that the calculation must be made for each position, i.e. no average calculation of net payments for acquiring more than one position may be done.

Profit on short sale positions means the net payment upon redemption (i.e. less expenses and including any expenses for securities loans), less expenses for repurchase (i.e. including expenses), where the difference is positive. The principle is that the calculation must be made for each position and an average calculation of net payments for sales of more than one position may not be made.

❖ Derivative instruments, structured investment products, etc.

The Reporting Party or Closely Related Person may not engage in short term trades in derivatives, structures investment products or other kind of Financial Instruments in such way that the investment or the combination of investments effectively circumvents the One-month-rule. If the Reporting Party is uncertain of whether a trade or combination of trades is compliant with the rules, he/she should seek approval from C&E for the transaction (pre-approval).

Examples of application of the One-month-rule in regards to derivatives transactions, is given in Appendix 1.

4.3. Information barriers

ES management should ensure that measures are taken to minimise the risk of unduly disclosure of Inside Information within the organisation. The measures could be, but not limited to:

- access management to physical or electronic folders, e-mail groups or similar electronic data,
- screen covers,
- limited print outs,
- secluded office areas etc.

The approach should be proportionate to the risk assessment on market abuse exposure and, where applicable, in line with the Information Security Management System Policy.

4.4. Procedures to adequately manage inside information

ES management should ensure that the business owners develop, document and implement procedures for identifying and handling of Inside Information, as well as reporting to the CEO and Board.

Such procedure should at least cover the following aspects:

- Guidance to identify Inside Information,
- Steps to follow by the first recipient of Inside Information to trigger the drafting of an Insider List,
- Guidance on Insiders Lists and requirement of acknowledgement by Insiders being put on an Insider List,
- Guidance pertaining to information barriers (including physical and electronic barriers, as adequate) and requirement to limit the number of Insiders to that necessary to execute the activities for which the Inside Information was received,
- Guidance pertaining to the closure of Insiders Lists, and
- Where applicable, guidance to manage Euroclear's own inside information.

C&E should ensure that there are procedures in place regarding secure and confidential collection of personal trades, as well as procedures on how the information should be analysed and how potential breaches should be reported to CEO and the Board.

5. Governance controls and measures

5.1. Annual self-declaration

C&E should ensure that there are procedures and tools in place to collect annual self-declaration from Staff. CoSec should ensure that there are similar procedures in place for collecting annual self-declaration from Board members. The respective department is responsible to ensure that the procedures are followed.

5.2. Reporting breaches

C&E should be informed of any breaches of the Market Abuse Regulation or policies and log them in the compliance breach log. C&E should instruct the organisation of how the market abuse breaches should be reported to them (e.g. tools, documents, e-mails etc.) and of the ability to use the whistleblowing channels (Speak Up channels) to report the breaches.

CoSec, as the single point of contact for the Board, should inform C&E as soon as possible when market abuse breaches of Board members are detected or reported. The Board should as well be informed of the possibility to use the Speak Up channels.

5.3. Record keeping and data protection

The information collected from the Board and ES persons include data of personal nature and should therefore be kept confidential and in secure place (e.g. locked safe if physical). For both physical and electronic information, the access to the data should be restricted and limited to persons which need the access for oversight purposes. Any documents not in use or exceeding the retention period should be destroyed as confidential information.

Records regarding the following events are to be kept with C&E:

- the personal transactions reporting and any authorisation or prohibition in connection with such reports
- the annual market abuse self-declaration
- the reports of potential or actual infringements of Market Abuse related laws, regulations and policies as well as investigation records
- the Insider Lists
- documentation of training and awareness initiatives such as training/awareness material, attendance, etc.

Records regarding the market abuse risk assessment are kept by the first line.

The data should be saved for five years in accordance with the Market Abuse Regulation unless there are reasons to keep it longer/shorter decided by a competent authority or the Board (e.g. in case of legal pursuits or events of similar significance).

Information on market abuse breaches shared with the Board and CEO should be, as far as possible, anonymous. Personal information should not be shared with anyone else but the Chair of the Board or CEO and only if necessary, given the nature of a breach.

5.4. Training and awareness

C&E should ensure that:

- the awareness of Board members and Staff on market abuse risks is proportionate to the risk level as identified in the risk assessment. It should include knowledge to be able to identify Inside Information and to recognise behaviour which constitutes Market Abuse in their day to day activity. Training in Market Abuse should also ensure that staff are made aware of their obligations in relation to Market Abuse (e.g. prohibition to carry out transactions once they are insiders, Unlawful Disclosure of Inside Information)
- reporting is done to the CEO, Board and ESA C&E (unless provided directly by ESA C&E) regarding the training on Market Abuse provided as well as its completion rate and pass mark, on an aggregated basis for the Euroclear Company.

6. Oversight of this IP

C&E is accountable for overseeing its implementation.

C&E will:

- review the IP every 3 years and report any review findings to the CEO
- recommend amendments or additions, when appropriate.

7. Violations of ES policies

Violations of ES policy documents, Code of Ethics and Business Conduct, laws, regulations or market practices may lead to legal proceedings or criminal sanctions in line with domestic legislation, as well as administrative or disciplinary action.

Further information about reporting violations can be found in the Speak Up Policy.

Appendix 1

Examples of the application of the One-month-rule to transactions in derivative instruments

It should be noted that the following examples do not provide an exhaustive description of the application of the One-month-rule in all conceivable situations.

The term option of deliverable underlying asset used in the examples refers to American option, i.e. with the right to redeem the option during the duration period. The applicability of the One-month-rule on European options, i.e. instruments where redemption can be done only by the expiration date, can be somewhat different than in the examples below.

A Deliverable underlying asset means a Financial Instrument.

Examples:

1. Issued or held option, where there is no possession of deliverable underlying asset, may not be paired-off within one Month where pair-off gives rise to a profit (the pair-off rule; Sw. kvittningsregeln).
2. Acquisition of a buy option with respect to a deliverable underlying asset may be done with no other restrictions accept the pair-off rule described in point 1.
3. Acquisition of a cash settled option may only be done if the remaining duration time is at least a Month.
4. Issuing of a cash settled option may be done with no other restrictions accept the pair-off rule described in point 1.
5. Acquisition of a put option with a redemption price equal to or exceeding the purchase price of the deliverable underlying asset, may only be done if equivalent assets have been held for at least one Month (constitutes a form of hedging of the sales price).
6. Issuing of a buy option with respect to a deliverable underlying asset may only be done if equivalent assets have been held for at least a Month (redemption resulting in profit on the underlying asset cannot be excluded).
7. Issuing of a put option with respect to a deliverable underlying asset may only be done if the remaining duration time is at least a Month (options that expire and become worthless nevertheless gives the issuer a premium, which is regarded as a profit).
8. Redemption of a forward/future contract with respect to a deliverable underlying asset may only be done where equivalent assets had been held for at least a Month.
9. Forward/futures contracts may not be netted within a Month following the day the forward/future contract was entered into if the netting results in a profit (the netting-rule; Sw. nettningsregeln).
10. Acquisition of an underlying asset of a forward/futures contract may be done with no other restrictions accept the netting-rule described in point 9.
11. When using combination of options or forward/futures contracts, or combination of these instruments and deliverable underlying assets, each element of the combination is considered being a Financial Instrument for which the main rule of one month retention is applicable (the One-month-rule).
